

M.S. IN GLOBAL MEDIA AND CULTURES SPANISH CONCENTRATION

The 12-month M.S. in Global Media and Cultures offers targeted bilingual preparation for careers in media, international business, and global leadership. Our program provides experiential training in media studies, cross-cultural communication, and advanced competence in a high-impact language and region. Students build a bilingual portfolio through internships, media production, research, and leadership opportunities.

Spanish Program

As the second most-widely spoken language in the world, Spanish opens doors in all professional fields. The Spanish program is dedicated to preparing global leaders who can respond to the challenges of today's workplace and think across cultures. Our LBAT programs provide rich immersive experiences, with service learning and internship opportunities that make an impact in Spanish-speaking communities and hone skills in research, fieldwork, problem-solving, and professional-level language competency. We offer a wide-ranging curriculum that includes coursework in literature, linguistics, media studies, digital culture, international business, sustainable development, and social justice.
